

Never again post “We’re available” if you want quality leads.

IT ATTRACTS TIRE KICKERS – NOT
HOMEOWNERS READY TO HIRE.
SAVE THIS CHECKLIST

WHY IT BACKFIRES

“We’re available” posts signal:

- no clear specialty
- no proof
- no reason to trust

Generic posts attract generic leads.

HOMEOWNERS HIRE CERTAINTY

Before they reach out, they want to know:

- “Can you solve my problem?”
 - “Have you done this before?”
 - “Can I trust you locally?”

Your content must answer these fast.

YOU'RE ACCIDENTALLY INVITING THEM

Tire kickers respond to:

- vague offers
- promo-first wording
- “DM for price” energy

Better contractor marketing starts with specificity + proof.

NEVER AGAIN CHECKLIST (SAVE THIS)

NEVER AGAIN POST:

- “We’re available” (no context)
- “Best in town” (no proof)
- discount-only promos (no trust)
- generic service lists (no focus)
- “DM me for info” (no value)

POST THIS INSTEAD:

- one specific problem + outcome
- proof (before/after, review line, process)
- local anchor (city/area served)
- 1 helpful tip (builds trust)
- a question that invites replies

REPLACE “WE’RE AVAILABLE” WITH THIS

TEMPLATE:

“Just finished a [job type] in [City/Area] ✓

The homeowner had [specific problem] and was worried about [fear].

We fixed it by [solution] in [timeframe].

One tip: [helpful tip].

If you’re seeing [symptom], want me to share the 3 signs it’s getting worse?”

SIGNS YOUR LEAD QUALITY IS IMPROVING

You'll start seeing:

- "Can you take a look at mine?"
- "What's your availability?"
- "Do you service [area]?"
- tags + referrals in comments

That's higher-intent demand.
